

The Bob Glahn Endowed Scholarship in Statistical Meteorology is funded by the late Bob Glahn, who, for nearly half a century, had been involved in pioneering work in the development of statistical applications within the atmospheric sciences. As one in a long list of achievements, Dr. Glahn developed the concept of Model Output Statistics (MOS) used by many countries worldwide. The scholarship carries a $3500 stipend.